

Vandana Mangal is Associate Research Director, BIT (Business and Information Technologies) with the Anderson School of Management at UCLA. She is involved in all lifecycle activities of the various research projects conducted under the BIT umbrella. Before joining UCLA, she was working at Intel as the Intel-HP Alliance Manager. She has also worked with Hitachi Data Systems and AE Business Solutions. In these roles, she worked on various projects including business process redesign, e-business, web development and distributed software development in the areas of education, telecommunications, government and law.