

Nick von Tunzelmann is the R.M. Phillips Professor of Science and Technology Policy at SPRU, University of Sussex, UK. He previously taught at Cambridge University before joining SPRU. His research interests include the evolution of technological capabilities, complexity and management, governance of microeconomic and macroeconomic systems, and long-term causes of economic growth. He was the coordinator of the IPTS/ESTO project on Asian growth dynamics on which this book is based.