

Chen Gang is a Research Fellow in the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore. He studied international relations and obtained his Ph.D. degree at the China Foreign Affairs University. He is the single author of the book The Kyoto Protocol and International Cooperation against Climate Change (Beijing: Xinhua Press, 2008) and Politics of China's Environmental Protection: Problems and Progress (Singapore: World Scientific, 2009). His research papers have appeared in refereed journals such as The Chinese Journal of International Politics, The Journal of East Asian Affairs, American Studies Quarterly, Journal of China Foreign Affairs University and the International Forum. His research interests include China's domestic politics and foreign policy, environmental governance, international relations and transnational cooperation against climate change.