

Lye Liang Fook is currently a Research Fellow at the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore. His research interests include China's central-local relations, propaganda and the media (particularly newspaper media groups), leadership changes and political stability in China. He was part of a team that completed a study on the Suzhou Industrial Park, the flagship project between China and Singapore. He has also written about the Sino-Singapore Tianjin Eco-city project. He was formerly with the Singapore Ministry of Foreign Affairs.