

Preface

Bunny was born a happy baby. She spent her whole day playing, eating, and sleeping. There was nothing to worry about. Life was great.

As time went on, she grew a bit bigger, and she was more aware of her surroundings. And she had to take responsibility to take care of herself. Events did not always happen the way that she wanted. Problems occurred that she did not know how to handle. Life became miserable.

One day, Bunny met Mr. Rabbit. Mr. Rabbit is a wise sage. He listened to Bunny's difficulties. He understood what her obstacle was. So he taught her The Scientific Method. Not only would The Scientific Method help her solve problems in situations that she is familiar with, it would also improve her thinking skills in environments that she is not accustomed to.

Bunny learnt The Scientific Method, and she practices it every day if and when she gets a chance. She is able to solve more problems than she ever could. And she lives happier ever after.
