

Benjamin R Foster (AB 1968, Princeton; MA 1973, MPhil, 1974, PhD 1975, Yale), Laffan Professor of Assyriology and Babylonian Literature and Curator of the Yale Babylonian Collection, was appointed to the Yale faculty in 1975. His research interests focus on two main areas: Mesopotamian, especially Akkadian, literature, and the social and economic history of Mesopotamia.

In the area of Akkadian literature, he is the author of Before the Muses (1993, 1996, 2005), a two-volume anthology of annotated translations from Akkadian literature of all periods. An abridged, paperback version of this work appeared as From Distant Days (1995). He translated the Akkadian Epic of Gilgamesh for the Norton Critical Editions series, The Epic of Gilgamesh (2001), and is author of more than twenty articles on various aspects of Akkadian literature.

In the area of history, especially social and economic history, he is the author of two books, Umma in the Sargonic Period (1982) and Administration and Use of Institutional Land in Sargonic Sumer (1982), as well as about forty articles, most of them dealing with the third millennium B.C.E. He is also active in the publication of primary source material, including one book, Sargonic Tablets from Telloh in the Istanbul Archaeological Museum (1982), and about twenty articles of text publications.

In addition, he is the author of four small monographs and translations, various brief philological notes, and about sixty book reviews. His current research includes a history of oriental scholarship in the United States, of which four preliminary studies have appeared in periodicals. His teaching experience includes all periods and text types of Sumerian and Akkadian and all periods of Mesopotamian history from the fourth millennium B C E to the Muslim conquest.
